WOMEN'S CONFERENCE NEARING

The National Women's Conference slated for March 7-9, is now in the final stages of planning. Organizations of the deaf in population centers around the nation are sending representatives to the three-day workshop aimed at developing leadership skills. Because of the nature of the training activities, which require extensive and intensive participation, the conference must be limited to official representatives.

It is hoped that representatives will return home to stimulate interest and activities at the local level. Gertrude Galloway (MAD), Sharon Morency (MWAD), Julia Mayes (GCAA) and Lois Dadzie (CCCD) will be attending from the Washington area.

An upbeat entertainment program, "Free to Be You and Me," is planned for Monday, March 8, at 8:30 p.m. in the SUL. All are welcome to attend and to socialize with the conference participants.

On Tuesday, March 9, the women will be meeting individually with their Congressional representatives. Volunteer interpreters are needed. Since these sessions will be conducted on a one-to-one basis, only average skills are required. If you are willing to help, please call Chris Finch at MSSD, ext. 411.
